PORTENT OF 1948

The Democratic convention has renominated Franklin D. Roosevelt, as every delegate knew the convention would have to do long before it convened. Beneath the surface enthusiasm for Mr. Roosevelt's demonstrated potency as a vote-getter for the party, there is running a stream of genuine apprehension, however. What will the next Democratic convention be like?

By all reasonable expectations and tokens, this will be Mr. Roosevelt's last party nomination. When the convention assembles in 1948, the party will have had to resolve within itself the factionalism which would have split it wide open this year had it not been for Mr. Roosevelt's power at the polls. The party is bound together only by the prospect of another victory. Even Mr. Roosevelt, himself, no longer is able to reconcile its divergent elements. He was virtually as helpless to avert the bitterness which flared up over selection of a vice presidential candidate to run with him this year as he was to make Sidney Hillman and Sen. Byrd of Virginia admire each other.

Whether he wins or loses the election, the Democratic party is facing some of the roughest times ever in prospect for a major political party. Parties have had their troubles, but this is the first time they have been dealing with sources of trouble as well organized and financed as the radicals who have moved into Democratic ranks under Mr. Roosevelt's encouragement. There is not room for them and their embarrassed hosts, too. For the moment, they are held in line tenuously by their interest in a political personality, nothing else.

DEMOCRATIC KEYNOTE

Gov. Robert S. Kerr gave the Democratic convention what is known in the political keynoting trade as a humdinger.

It was a great show, and that is what keynote speeches are supposed to be for; this one was in the best tradition. Insofar as it was a tipoff to the party line, it had its serious side, too.

Gov. Kerr makes it plain the strategy is to run Franklin D. Roosevelt for his 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th years, in the presidency against the ghost of Herbert Hoover. Thanks to Democratic success in smearing Mr. Hoover before 1932, he is still the party's prime political asset—the Democrats' best bet to divert attention from what happened when they were grappling with the depression.

It is not to be expected that a keynoter ever will spoil the show by sticking too close to facts, but not many Democratic orators will be brazen enough to imitate Gov. Kerr's line that the war boom is a New Deal project—not while voters are sweating out taxes, waiting for casualty lists and watching the public debt climb to 200 billion dollars. Gov. Kerr stretched himself to the danger point on that claim.

Nor will many orators care to follow the invidious comparison he made between the chief executive of this representative democracy and the dictators of Russia and China, both of whom Gov. Kerr pointed to with throaty pride as examples of elderly men who are going to stay in office indefinitely. The governor had better think that one over before he brings it up again.

It's hard to believe the Democrats really intend to come out flatfooted in the campaign for old men in government—the older the better, though it sounded like Gov. Kerr was heading in that direction Wednesday night. Their party line, prevueed some days ago by Sidney Hillman, is to re-smear Mr. Hoover when they are talking about the home front and glorify Mr. Roosevelt when they are talking about their claims to global precescence.

DONALD NELSON'S BATTLE

During Donald M. Nelson's long service as civilian head of war production in a war which strategists plan to win by sheer superiority of material, he has been in a continuous battle with his military counterparts. The battle sometimes has raged and sometimes slumbered in watchful waiting, but it never has been concluded—probably never can be.

In its present phase, it is an effort by Mr. Nelson to recover a small part of the control he lost over production during the period when the war and navy departments by common consent were sweeping everything before them. Mr. Nelson and his cohorts fell back in strategic retreat, acknowledging that in preparation for the beginning of the offensive in Europe nothing could be allowed to interfere with military demands, no matter how great.

But now, the Nelsonites in Washington are attempting to reestablish their position of civilian authority—backed, obviously, by something vastly more potent than their private convictions. Mr. Nelson has not held his position so long and so successfully without firm support from the White House. In his present attitude toward the necessity for reconversion on a moderate scale pending some turning point in the war which will be the signal for wholesale reconversion, he is fighting again for the military-civilian balance which has been the trademark of his policy. It reconversion, when it finally happens, is accomplished with less dislocation than alarmists fear, it will be a tribute to Mr. Nelson and his backers.

TOTTERING SYMBOLS

Hitler, it appears, escaped an attempt on his life with nothing more serious than bruises and burns, but Tojo didn't get off quite so lucky. The Axis symbols are having a rough time.

With Tojo out of the premiership, Japan has completed political acknowledgment of the emergency situation created by the relentless encroachment of Allied forces on the empire. Obviously, what Tokyo says officially about the cabinet change will conceal more truth than it will reveal, but just as obviously wartime cabinets are not made over without good cause.

Tojo is gone, and Hitler is going. Mussolini, the other Axis symbol, already has been forgotten. It is clear that the symbols are useful only for purposes of referring to what is behind them. Tojo was arrogant militarism. Mussolini was the ranting opportunist. Hitler was still is—the embittered schemer trying to get even with deceit, terror and ruthlessness.

These are the things the United Nations are fighting. The symbols are not the evil, but only the convenient names given to the evil. If the bomb had come a little closer, Hitler might not be alive today, but the things he represented cannot be destroyed by a bomb.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, July 23

SUNDAY'S horoscope makes for an exciting and disruptive day, with sudden changes and astonishing adventures, perhaps of an unprecedented character. This upheaval might prove to be constructive eventually if judiciously and conservatively met and manipulated, and not with panic and erratic moves. The disturbance is as likely to manifest in the social, mental and emotional life, where restraint is recommended. Keep down nervous tension.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of astonishing developments with sudden devastating adventures, involving unforeseen changes, travel and many thrilling experiences. These should be accepted with as much composure and balance as is compatible with bewildering and breathtaking disturbances. It may be possible to hold to secure and firm foundations, since there is a sign of a stabilizing force. Hold firm check on emotions and health and attain happiness and success.

A child born on this day should have a successful, progressive and happy life, if it will control its emotions.

For Monday, July 24

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of continued progress in out of the routine programs, with faculties, forces and emotions under high tension under which it may be possible to achieve several unique or startling objectives. The mentality will be keyed to unusual matters, but carried to excess there may be reactions on the health and a nullification of desirable aims. There should be splendid stimuli for scientific invention, dramatic composition or acting.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unusual experiences, under pressure of highly stimulated forces, energies and creative abilities. It may bring forth unusual results in literary, dramatic or scientific invention, or other exceptional or spectacular expression. Unless this tension can be properly restrained or wisely directed there may be reactions.

A child born on this day should be exceptionally talented, original and independent, with a temperamental disposition.

The Allies must be ready with their relief plans if millions are to be saved from starvation, destitution, and pestilence—Archbishop of York.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

The Migraine Headache

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
MIGRAINE, regular recurrent headache, sick headache, plagues about one out of every 200 people all their lives. It differs from all other headaches and can be recognized by four signs. (1) The victim begins to have "his," or "her," headaches (they are very possessive about their headaches: they can tell the migraine attacks from other ordinary headaches that may be due to bad air, overwork, eye-strain, etc.) at about the age of 15 to 20 and has them at recurrent periods, not necessarily regular periods for many years until change of life or old age stops them. (2) Aura, or premonition of the coming headache—light flashes, ringing in the ears, etc. (3) There is usually nausea and vomiting, which is why it is called sick headache. (4) A family history of migraine or allergy.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Innumerable remedies have been suggested for relief. Not one known to me works in every case. Most of the sufferers have their own personal way of avoiding or mitigating the attack and these run the gamut of the drugs from aspirin and salts on up or down. Then there are water cures, electric cures, diet cures, and little tricks like taking a walk, or a cold shower, or going to a movie, all of which work for some one individual.

Best Remedies

Probably the best of the drugs is ergotamine tartrate. Best because it works on a larger proportion of people, than any other single remedy ever suggested. It is estimated that it gives relief to 90% of migraine headaches. Its specificity is shown in the fact that it often induces a headache in those not subject to migraine.

Its action is generally ascribed to its ability to constrict the blood vessels inside the cranium and theoretically this should work in migraine because the ache is prettily well proved to be due to dilatation of the blood vessels on one side of the head. This is shown by the flushing of one side of the face during an attack. And several examinations of the back of the eyes with an aphthoscope have shown the retinal vessels dilated in one eye.

Goltman reported a unique case in a person whose headaches were supposed to be due to a brain tumor and a surgeon cut a flap out of the skull. No tumor was found and the patient continued to have her migraine headaches. When she had one there was a marked bulging of the soft spot in her skull. When she was free of attack the soft spot was depressed.

Another remedy which has been suggested for migraine in the last two years is benzedrine sulphate. It has the same action as ergotamine in the constriction of blood vessels. The sufferer from chronic nose trouble often finds his best temporary relief in the inhalation of benzedrine put up in small metal tubes so the fumes can be sniffed. It shrinks the vessels and mucosa of his nose so that he can breathe freely.

Benzedrine Taken Orally

It is absorbed when taken by mouth and has a general constricting effect on blood vessels particularly those of the head. It has a peculiar action on the brain cells, accelerating mental processes so that it is popular with those in the know who are going to take a final examination in something or other. In a small group (18) of migraine patients Gottlieb, of the University of Iowa, found it gave relief in 67%. Thirty-three per cent of patients had the attacks aborted if they took the benzedrine early enough before the attack started.

A favorite theory about migraine is that it is a manifestation of allergy. The hereditary nature of both complaints is suggestive. Undoubtedly many with a migraine background have their attacks precipitated by some food to which they are allergic. Many of these patients can be desensitized by the use of histamine, as described in the June issue of the Annals of Internal Medicine. Histamine desensitization has been used in other forms of allergy.

These remedies should be given under medical direction and I have purposely refrained from giving dosage or methods of administration.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

K. B. W.: What is meant by a "compensatory pause" in the heart?

Answer: After the contraction of the heart muscle it has to rest in order to obtain oxygen from its blood vessels and to regain contractility—during this compensatory period it does not beat. It is simply the resting period between heart beats.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

Nora was sitting up in bed, reading the Wrightsville Record. She was unusually looking. Ellery was looking to see how transparent the skin of her hands had grown. Nora smiled wanly and patted the bed. "Really have to be going. You can't talk."

"But I want you to hear this, too," Pat said down in the chintz-covered chair on the other side of the bed.

"Pat," said Nora, "I owe you an apology."

"Who me?" asked Ellery, astonished. "For what?"

"For having accused you of telling the police about those three letters and the toxicology book. When Chief Dakin said he was going to arrest Jim, I lost my head."

"You see? I'd forgotten it. You are the same."

Nora took his hand. "It was a momentary thought. But for the moment I couldn't imagine who'd told them but you."

"You weren't responsible, Nora," said Pat. "Ellery understands that."

"But there's something else," said Nora. "I can apologize for my thought, but I can't wipe out what I did to Jim." Her lower lip trembled. "If not for me, they'd never have found out about those letters!"

Nora sniffled with her handkerchief to her nose. "I don't know why I didn't burn them. Such a stupid thing—to keep them in that box in my closet! But I had some idea I'd be able to find out who really wrote them—I was sure Jim hadn't."

"Nora," said Ellery gently. "For—"

"But I practically handed Jim over to the police!"

"That isn't true. Don't forget Dakin came here last week prepared to arrest Jim. Questioning you before was just a formality."

"Then you think those letters and the book don't make any essential difference?" asked Nora eagerly.

Ellery got up from the bed and looked out the window at the winter sky. "Well, . . . not too much."

"You're deceiving me!"

"Mrs. Haight," declared Pat firmly, "you've had enough company for one morning. Ellery, scram!"

He turned around. "This sister of yours, Pat, will suffer more from doubt than from knowledge. Nora, I tell you exactly what the situation is."

Nora gripped her comforter with both hands.

"If Dakin was prepared to arrest Jim before he knew about the letters and the toxicology book, then surely he and Carter Bradford ought to have had a good case."

Nora made a tiny sound. "With the letters and the book, therefore, they have a better case. Now that the truth you've got to face, you've got to stop accusing yourself, you've got to get well again, you've got to stand up to Jim and give him courage."

He leaned over her and took her hand. "Jim needs your strength, Nora. You have a strength he lacks. He can't face you, but if he knows you're behind him, having faith—"

"Yes," breathed Nora, here eyes shining. "I have. Tell him I have."

"Going my way?" asked Ellery as they left the house.

"Which way is that?"

"Courtroom. I want to see Jim." "Me too," chimed in Pat.

They drove down the Hill in silence. Wrightsville looked nicely wintry, all whites and reds and blacks, no shading; it had the country look, the simple cleanliness, of a Grant Wood painting.

The County Jail occupied the two topmost floors of the Courthouse. As they stepped out of the elevator into the waiting room, an odor of steam and lysol made Pat swallow hard. But she managed a smile for the benefit of Wally Planetsky, the officer on duty.

"Where's Mr. Haight's cell?"

"Judge Martin's with him, Miss Pat. Rules say only one visitor at a time, but . . . Officer Planetsky's voice subsided into acquiescence and they began a rather long march, interrupted by the unlocking and locking of iron doors, until they entered Haight's cell.

Jim sprang to his feet when he spied them, a quick flush coming to his sallow cheeks; but then he sat down again and said hoarsely: "Hello there. I didn't know you were coming."

"Hello, Jim!" greeted Pat cheerily. "How are you?"

"All right."

Judge Martin had risen and bowed to the visitors. Then he said, "Well, Jim, I'll be on my way. I'll drop in tomorrow for another talk."

"Thanks, Judge."

"Nora's fine," said Pat.

"That's swell."

Then Ellery interjected, "Pat, didn't you say you had an errand somewhere? There's something I'd like to say to Jim in private."

Pat turned her pale face to Ellery, mumbled something, smiled weakly at Jim, and left with the Judge.

Ellery looked down at Jim who was studying the bare floor of his cell.

"He wants me to talk," mumbled Jim suddenly.

"Well, why not?"

"What could I say?"

Ellery offered him a cigaret. Jim took it, but when Ellery held a lighted match, he shook his head and slowly tore the cigaret to shreds.

"You could say," murmured Ellery, "that you didn't write those three letters, or mark that paragraph on arsenic."

For an instant Jim's fingers stopped tormenting the cigaret; then they resumed their work of destruction. Suddenly Ellery asked, "Did you really plan to poison Nora?"

Haight did not even indicate that he had heard the question.

"You know, Jim, when a man is guilty of a crime he's much better off telling the truth to his lawyer and friends than keeping quiet. And when he's not guilty, it's actually criminal to keep quiet. It's a crime against himself."

Jim said nothing.

"How do you expect your family and friends to help you when you won't help yourself?"

Jim's lips moved.

"What did you say, Jim?"

"Nothing."

"As a matter of fact," went on Ellery briskly, "your crime of silence isn't directed half so much against yourself as it is against your wife and the child that's coming."

"Don't say that!" said Jim hoarsely. "Get out of here! I didn't ask you to come! I didn't ask Judge Martin to defend me!"

"Is that," asked Ellery, "what you want me to tell Nora?"

There was such misery in Jim's eyes as he sat on the edge of his cell bunk that Ellery went to the door and called Planetsky.

As Ellery followed the guard down the eye-studded corridor a cell exploded in his brain with a great and disproportionate burst of light. He actually stopped walking, causing old Planetsky to turn and look at him in surprise. But then he shook his head and strode on again. He'd almost had it that time—by sheer divination. Maybe the next time . . .

Pat drew a deep breath outside the frosted-glass door on the second floor of the County Courthouse, tried to see her reflection, poked nervously at her mink hat, tried out a smile or two, not too successfully, and then went in. Miss Bilcox looked as if she were seeing a ghost.

"Is the Prosecutor in, Billy?" inquired Pat.

"I'll . . . see, Miss Wright," said Miss Bilcox.

Carter Bradford came out to her in a hurry.

"Come in, Pat." He looked tired. His desk was covered with legal papers.

"Well," said Pat, looking around. "The old office—I mean the new office—doesn't seem to have changed, Cart."

"About the only thing that hasn't, but, Pat, let me say, you look simply delicious."

"It's nice of you to say so," sighed Pat.

"Why I dream about you," said Carter with a self-conscious laugh.

"Now, Cart, you know perfectly well you're just saying that to be polite."

He shook his head. "Dreaming or not dreaming, it's always the same. Your face—"

Then she was in his arms. It was like a spy drama, except that she hadn't planned the script exactly this way. This was to come after—as a reward to Cart for being a sweet, self-sacrificing boy. His lips sought hers.

Satan, A Pet Bulldog, Is Real Navy Battler

PORTLAND, Ore.—Satan, a Pitt bulldog, is the mascot of the landing craft LCI-1923, and the crew members think he is an appropriate mascot, for he has a battle record a yard long.

Although sweet-tempered with human beings, Satan becomes a fury on four legs when he sees another dog. Hardly a dog in his old neighborhood in Portland escaped an encounter with the snow-white battler and his whirlwind attack.

Satan was given to the crew when the captain told a group of Portland women that his men's only request was for a dog of spirit that would typify the traditions of the Navy.

Rep. Bolton Will Make Visit To England Soon

WASHINGTON, July 22 — The first woman member of Congress to visit a war theater will be Rep. Frances P. Bolton (R-Ohio), who announced today she will leave soon to see America's fighting men and women at their stations in England.

A member of the house foreign affairs committee, Mrs. Bolton said the trip would be made on "my own initiative both as a member of Congress and as an individual," she said she would pay her own expenses.

Active in public health for many years, Mrs. Bolton said she would visit hospitals and inspect nursing and rehabilitation work in England.

Iceland, One of Oldest Democracies In World, Becomes the Youngest Republic

AP Features
ICELAND, one of the world's oldest democracies, today becomes the world's youngest republic.

The Althing (Parliament), meeting at the capital city of Reykjavik, has completed the procedure of severing all ties with Denmark, bringing complete independence to the tiny country's 120,000 people.

The citizens had case an overwhelming vote for this action at a popular referendum held May 20, 23 despite a plea by Denmark's King Christian X that the vote be deferred until after the war. Under a treaty of 1918, Iceland had adopted a constitution and acted as an independent nation but had accepted King Christian as its monarch.

Now that tie has been broken. Formed in 930

The government of Iceland dates back to the establishment of the democratic Althing—"grandmother of all parliaments"—in 930. Originally tied to Norway and developing blood connection, culture and economic trade with Europe, Iceland always has held to the principles of the democracy and never in its history engaged in a foreign war. Because of its foreign control the modern nation marked its twentieth birthday only in December, 1938.

Lief Erickson's Home

Although knowledge of the island goes back to the days of the early seafaring peoples of Greece and the British Isles, history has it that the first real colonization of Iceland was made by the Norwegians who came over in large numbers following initial settlement by Irish monks.

Iceland was the birthplace of Lief Erickson, famous Norseman, discoverer of Greenland and believed to be the first ship master to make a non-stop Atlantic crossing.

Some 40,000 of the island's people reside in the mostly ironclad timber houses of Reykjavik. Nearly all are literate. Schooling is compulsory for all persons 7 to 14 years of age. Many know several languages, and English has become increasingly popular since war stepped up relations with the United States and Britain.

Most commodities, textiles, foods, machinery and coal included, must be imported. Fisheries produce cod and herring which are dried and sold at a $5,000,000 annual yield. The soil is poor. Principal farm crops are hay, potatoes and turnips. Oval shaped, about the size of Kentucky, the country has a large plateau, the rim of which is used for farming. Almost one-fourth of the island's surface is pitted with thousands of volcanic craters, some of them active, and many glaciers. Hot geysers, particularly those near Reykjavik, have been put to use. The hot water is piped to bring heat into buildings, truck gardens, vegetable greenhouses, a public swimming pool and a large laundry. Many rushing streams have been harnessed for hydro-electric power.

Before the war German pilots flying German planes from Reykjavik to towns in northern Iceland learned to know the country well. The port city was bombed and machinegunned by the Germans, according to dispatches, early in 1941. Armed forces from the United States were later sent to protect this important Atlantic outpost at the order of President Roosevelt.

IT'S BEEN A SELLERS MARKET

BUT, between a "sellers" and a "buyers market," we'll take the latter . . . any time.

THERE may be a wee bit of selfishness in the above statement because you see . . . we as dealers, are buyers too . . . the same as you.

WE MUST buy first before we can sell . . . and in doing our buying, we are confronted with many of the same difficulties as you.

WE FIND salesmen and manufacturers who have an over-exalted opinion of themselves, their products and their standing in the industry.

YOU NO doubt have had similar experiences in your search for merchandise.

THOSE are only some of the penalties of a "sellers market."

WE AT The Cope Furniture Co. fully realize the dangers which exist under present conditions, when in many instances there are more customers than there is goods to go around.

MERCHANTS and salespeople, alike, are too apt to forget the little niceties . . . the courtesies, to which every shopper . . . every looker . . . every customer is entitled.

THAT'S why we say, "Give us a buyers' market" . . . every time . . . all the time." We think the buyers should be in the driver's seat.

Mrs. Calkins New President Of Federation

Mrs. R. B. Calkins was elected president of the Salem Federation of Church Women when 55 members met at Centennial park for a coverdish dinner. Mrs. E. F. Naragon was elected vice president and Mrs. Agnes Gorbey, secretary-treasurer.

The constitution was read and adopted during the business meeting.

Rev. Robert Mosher was in charge of the devotional service, and Mrs. Homer Taylor played two xylophone solos, "The Rosary" and "Fairer Lord Jesus," accompanied by Mrs. W. J. Seeman.

Mrs. Cora Hull of Lisbon, teacher in the Menaul mission school in Albuquerque, N. M., was guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. John Baker of New Garden have received an interesting letter from their son, Sgt. Clayton Baker, with the Army in France, describing the country around the Normandy beachhead where he is serving with the 528th ordnance company. He wrote "I wouldn't trade the beachhead for all of England. It is warm enough here that we don't have to wear all the clothes we own. Most of the buildings are made of stone. A lot of them are so old they have slots to shoot a bow and arrow through. The country reminds me of our Western ranches—cattle and German cavalry horses run all over, but you never see anyone to take care of them. The Germans just got out and left the horses."

LOSS OF SUBS

Annapolis, Md.

The Trout was commissioned in November, 1940, and was one of the better-known submarines of the fleet.

She was credited at the time her crew was awarded the Presidential unit citation in May, 1943, with having destroyed a total of 43,200 tons of enemy shipping and damaging 31,500 additional tons, including a hostile aircraft carrier.

The total amount of gold, silver and negotiable securities carried out of Corregidor aboard the Trout never has been disclosed. It included vast amounts of gold, silver and securities of the Philippine commonwealth gathered by High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre and taken to Corregidor.

Try the Classifieds—a gold mine of values for the thrifty buyer.

ON THE HEELS of the De Gaulle declaration in Washington concerning the French attitude on the western boundaries of Germany and the Polish statements concerning the eastern boundary, comes the proposal by Sumner Welles, former Secretary of State, in his book, "The Time for Decision," with a plan to divide Germany into three parts, as shown on the map. Gen. De Gaulle abjured any claim to annexation of land held by Germany in 1939 but wanted the Ruhr and Saar valleys under international authority. The Polish government seeks to annex East Prussia and probably have Danzig as a seaport. The Welles division of Germany would be, as shown above: (A) "a new state of South Germany" including the Rhineland, Bavaria and other nearby states; (B) a northwestern state made up of old German subdivisions; (C) a state made up of small political subdivisions to include Saxony and Prussia minus East Prussia (D), which would go to Poland. Theatre Attractions

George Raft and Zorina in a happy scene from the star-studded musical, "Follow the Boys," with Grace McDonald and an all-star cast.

"Follow the Boys," Universal's star-studded musical which comes to the State theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, brings to the screen the shows that are following the boys around the world. George Raft and Vera Zorina are cast as old time vaudevillians who make good in the movies and organize a Hollywood Victory committee to provide entertainment for the boys in service. The performance of these celebrities form most of the sequences of the movie. Raft and the lovely Zorina as a new dancing pair, and concert pianist Arthur Rubinstein's performance of "Liebesträume" are highlights of the movie. Jeanette MacDonald sings several popular favorites for wounded soldiers.

Wednesday and Thursday at the State is a comedy, "It Happened Tomorrow," with Dick Powell and Linda Darnell.

The long awaited "White Cliffs of Dover," a love story of the last war, comes to the State for four days starting Friday. Irene Dunn plays the American girl while Alan Marshall is cast as her English husband.

Concluding at the State tonight is Maxwell Anderson's "Eve of St. Mark" with William Eythe and Anne Baxter.

The product of daring Signal Corps men and the abject of unbounded praise of movie and war critics is "Attack," the heroic and actual story of our battle for New Britain.

"MONTY" PICKS TANK BATTLE SITE

A FIERCE TANK BATTLE is reported southeast of Caen with huge losses of supplies by the Nazis. This land is unfortified and flat and chosen by General Montgomery through a series of master tactical strokes. For three days tanks and infantry struck southeast of Caen, every move pointing to that area as the spot chosen to establish a beachhead. Then Montgomery struck with tremendous power northeast and east of Caen. By the time the Nazis realized what had happened the Allies had broken through and their tanks and armored equipment were rolling into "the gorgeous tank country" Montgomery had picked for the battle. FORT RILEY HAS WILD WOOLY PAST

DODGE CITY, Kas.—Air Corps officers found a military order in Fort Riley files, dated Oct. 25, 1842, which read:

1. Members of this command will when shooting at buffaloes on the parade ground, be careful not to fire in the direction of the commanding officers' headquarters.

2. The troop officer having the best-trained mount for this year will be awarded one barrel of rye whiskey.

3. Student officers will discontinue the practice of roping and riding buffaloes.

POLICE DOG REFUSES TO RETIRE
CHARLOTTE, N. C.—When Jack Hunter was sent overseas he shipped his outfit's dog, raised by the McCook, Neb., police department, home to his father. Like the old fire horse who couldn't retire, the dog streaks off every time he hears a police siren. The other day he was found riding up the town's main street proudly perched on a three-wheeled traffic motorcycle, beside a policeman.

WHAT MAKES A HITCH-HIKER.
AUSTIN, Tex.—In Mineral Wells an applicant failed his ninth examination for a driver's license.

"Did you ever read the book of instructions?" the examiner asked. "No," he said. "I thought you would get tired of my coming back and finally give me a license without examination."

EL-PARTISAN TICKET
ELMDALE, Kas.—Democrat George T. Dawson was hurrying to town to file his party's ticket before the deadline. His car broke down. He had only a few minutes to reach the county seat. T. R. Wells, a Republican, came to the rescue. He rushed Dawson and the Democratic petitions to town just in time.

SCRAMBLED EGGS
A LA CAR
DIGHTON, Kas.—Bill Briscoe was driving to town when he stopped, lifted the hood of the car and found scrambled eggs. Hens had laid three eggs on the engine. Vibration cracked them and the engine's heat did the rest.

DATES WITH A TURTLE
EL DORADO, Kas.—The other day L. M. Longstreth met his favorite turtle again. He found it first in 1906 and carved the date on its shell. Again in 1913, 1917 and 1940 Longstreth encountered the turtle and each time carved the date on its shell. Now the turtle also bears the date of 1944.

Household Hints

Scrap of sold tablecloth make interesting doilies.

Massage finger tips with vaseline to prevent nails from splitting and cracking.

Be sure to remove jewelry before applying creams, lotions or other refreshers to the face.

Alternate shoes as often as possible to rest your feet as well as the shoes.

Unsweetened grapefruit juice sprinkled over cooking fish gives a good tart flavor.

A mixture of alcohol and alum rubbed over the hands occasionally will help prevent damp clammy hands.

Since dried milk is lacking in fat and Vitamin A, serve more yellow vegetables, eggs, fruits and fats in the diet when using.

To prevent food poisoning keep picnic foods and all moist foods in refrigerator after cooking and until ready to use.

Drink cool, slightly salted water occasionally to quench thirst and help get back salt lost in perspiration.

For cleaner greens and to avoid a gritty taste, wash spinach, water-cress, lettuce and others in slightly warm water.

Yellow cornmeal or powdered orris root sprinkled into the scalp will remove excess oil and is an excellent dry shampoo.

Put home-made cookies in a tightly covered container as soon as they are cool and store in a cool dry place.

Buy untrimmed cauliflower and use the tender insides as one vegetable. Tender leaves may be diced, cooked and served in cream sauce at another meal.

Dried skim milk is an economical source of milk proteins, calcium and phosphorus and B vitamins. It can be stored in its dried form without refrigeration.

BAGBY LOOMING AS TRIBE STAR, PENNANT THREAT

Indian Hurler May Make Cleveland Into Top Aggregation

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
Jim Bagby who once vowed he'd never pitch another game for Cleveland under Manager Lou Boudreau stood out as the man who may boost the Tribe into the thick of the pennant scrap. . . . When Bagby joined the Merchant Marine after last season, he said he was through with Cleveland. But after being rejected by the draft earlier in the week, the 17-game winner of '42 and '43 hustled to the Tribal wigwam and last night stopped Philadelphia with five hits as Boudreau's Indians took a 4-1 decision over Luke Hamlin to sweep the series.

While the Yankees and Browns took turns knocking one another's brains out, without disturbing St. Louis' 2-game margin, Cleveland and Detroit made motions toward serious contention. The St. Louis-New York series ended yesterday when Al Hollingsworth pitched at Hollingsworth for an 8-2 Yank victory and an even break. Detroit took four straight from Washington, all by one-run margins, to keep pace with Cleveland in a fourth place tie, 1½ games back of Boston and 5½ off the top. Dizzy Trout captured win No. 13 at the expense of Reliever Early Wynn of the Senators as Roger Cramer hammered home two Detroit runs and scored the other in a last of the ninth rally for a 6-5 edge.

Boston lost ground by falling before Chicago, 5-3, for the second time in 14 starts. . . . Harry Brecheen shut out the New York Giants, 5-0, to help the Cardinals move another step toward an early flag in the National. Johnny Hopp Ray Sanders spanked home runs.

Brooklyn's losing slump finally dumped the Dodgers into the basement, tied with Boston, after dropping a 3-2 game to Cincinnati's Ed Heusser. . . . Max Butcher boosted his win streak to five although the Phils outhit the Pirates. Pittsburgh won the 5-3 night victory. . . . Dom Dallessandro's two-run homer in the eighth broke a 2-2 tie for Chicago's 4-2 margin over the Braves after Bill Nicholson's 16th round tripper had given Chicago an early lead.

Dom Dallessandro's two-run homer in the eighth broke a 2-2 tie for Chicago's 4-2 margin over the Braves after Bill Nicholson's 16th round tripper had given Chicago an early lead.

Lady "Pro" Takes Over For Husband In Service

ERIE, Pa. — Herbert Vogt, "pro" at the Erie Golf course since 1935, is in the army now but the sign over the pro's headquarters at the course reads "H. Vogt." . . . It's Vogt's wife, Helen, who stepped into the job without any difficulty after her husband left for the service last spring. Although she doesn't consider her golfing good enough to give instructions to others, she handles all the other duties of the job.

These include the registration of memberships, ordering and selling of supplies and equipment, hiring the help and acting as caddy master, or rather mistress. . . . Mrs. Vogt's preparation for the job consisted mainly of having been a good wife and listening dutifully when her husband used to talk golf around the house. In that way she became pretty familiar with the sort of things which caused him indigestion.

Whenever she runs into a new problem, she merely refers to her "Correspondence School" lessons contributed regularly by Vogt from his army post in Augusta, Ga. . . . "Assistant Pro" at the course is Vogt's five-year-old daughter who accompanies her mother to work each day.

New Type Fishing Line Is Shown to Anglers

Something different and new along the fishing "line" was shown Ohio anglers at the recent annual campfire of the Brotherhood of the Jungle Cuck, in the Catoctin mountains of Maryland. . . . A fishing line made of glass (no joking) by Larry Richey, close associate and secretary of Herbert Hoover when he was President, was exhibited.

The line was wound on a spool like a thread and resembled ordinary cotton. The line proved to be tough and rugged and will stand casting punishment. J. W. Stuber, division of conservation management technician, reports. The new glass line is the result of many experiments that promise to replace regular materials in the future.

Reels and rods will be made of plastic eventually, the experts declare.

Grand Circuit Fans Get Three Added Events

Athletics Down Liverpool 7-1; Prepare For Contest With Canton Spikers Here

Proving with emphasis that their extra-inning win over East Liverpool here several weeks ago wasn't a freak, the Salem Athletics yesterday pinned the ears of the Red Sox back with a 7-1 defeat on their own Patterson field in the Pottery City. . . . Coming up with their first win of the week, after losing to Warren and tying Columbiana, the Athletics are now eager for contest with the strong Canton Spikers here tomorrow afternoon. The game, which is booked for Centennial park at 2:30 p. m., will feature the exhibition of two young Spikers hurlers, both presumably of the best in the district.

The Spikers are using a left-hander, Frank Smith, and Don Cox, a right-hander who is noted for his no-hitter in the Ohio High school finals at Columbus two years ago. Curt Grewell does the receiving. . . . The game in East Liverpool yesterday was a tight one until the last two innings, when Salem splurged with six runs, three in each. Until then it had been a 1-0 favor of the Athletics after they tallied the first marker in the fifth inning. . . . Pitchers Walt Smith and Bill Allison turned in a superb joint performance, limiting the Red Sox to three hits. The only Liverpool score was made in the last of the final inning, when Salem led 7-0.

Canton Steelers To Meet Lake Team

The Carrollton Merchants, who copped their last start 3-2 over the Canton Spikers last Sunday to post their tenth victory in 12 starts, will battle the Canton Steelers in another encounter at Lake Placencia at 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

Carrollton split their four games with Canton last year but will have to travel at top speed to decision the Stark county invaders as they have a hustling, hard-hitting aggregation that has won a majority of games played to date.

Young George Yanen, 17-year-old speed ball artist, will take the mound for Carrollton with Gail Walters back of the bat.

Cornell, Holy Cross Get All-Star Berths

CHICAGO, July 22.—Cornell and Holy Cross have won the east's first nominations to the college All-Star football squad which meets the Chicago Bears at Dwyer stadium Aug. 30.

The Chicago Tribune, sponsor of the All-Star contest, disclosed today that Merrill Cushing, captain and center on the 1943 Cornell team, and 226-pound Frank Gagliano, Holy Cross guard, were the first eastern players among the nine collegians thus far named.

News Drops Tilt To Pump Team, As Eddy Stars For Pottery With Three Hits

Asserting their Class A softball championship style once again, the Salem China aggregation piled another victory—their 18th in a row—on the Recreations at Centennial park yesterday by a 3-2 margin.

In the second game, Demings took advantage of the Recreation loss and pulled themselves into a three-way tie for second place by defeating the News, 3-1, in a tightly fought contest.

The Chinas, pitched to victory again by Dale Ritchie, scored their first two tallies in the first two innings and added the winning margin in the fifth when Razor Eddy, slugger of the day, laid a home run to left center. Eddy led the Pottery to their 18th straight by clouting three hits in three times at bat and knocking in two of the three runs total. The win clinched the third round title for the Pottery.

The Recs, in the ball game from start to finish, scored once in the fourth and again in the fifth. Several times during the game the Recs failed to connect with runs on the bases and missed opportunities to tie the game and go on to win.

The initial China marker came in the first inning when a walk, an error and a pop hit over first base by Eddy scored the tally. The second score was again the result of a hit with a man on second and two out in the second inning.

The winning marker came on Tullis, lf, who came on in the fifth and the blow—a hard line smash between left and center field—was one of the best tagged four baggers this season.

Ritchie allowed the Recs just three hits in the game while Pitcher Pauline allowed six safe China blows. Both teams committed three errors but the Old Timer errors were more costly than the China misplays.

The second game, a close battle between the News and Demings, saw the Pump men chalk up their third win of the round by scoring three runs on just five hits. The News collected seven safeties but failed to make them count.

The News took an early lead by copping their lone tally in the second inning, but Demings came back in the third to score a run and tie it all up. The tally came on an error in the second after Kenny Brudery had hit safely to right field.

Demings scored in both the sixth and final frames to put the game on ice as Brudery pitched airtight ball in the late innings to blank the News. The loss moves the News into a tie for last place with Paxsons and the win puts Demings in a three-way scramble for second place honors this season.

EMPLOYMENT

Male Help Wanted

AN OPPORTUNITY—As a Field Supervisor for one of the nation's largest companies catering principally to farmers' needs, I am entrusted with placing a valuable contract which should mean complete independence for a man fortunate enough to have the following qualifications: Must have, in addition to a character record that will withstand investigation, the proven ability to efficiently manage both himself and his son business. Financial status or age are not extremely important, but automobile is indispensable. Telephone for an appointment between 4 p. m. and 8 p. m. Monday, July 24. Mr. Jamison, care of Lape Hotel, Salem, Ohio.

ATTENTION

This ad is addressed to a man who is concerned about his future security. He may be too old for industry or you and exempt from military service. Perhaps his income is uncertain or inadequate to meet present day demands. He may be discouraged, but if he has good references and a car, there is a possibility of his qualifying for better than average earnings. He should forward full personal history to Box 316, Letter L, Salem, O. This notice will not appear again.

YOUR CHANCE—I operate a congenial business which produces a fine income. After the war it will continue to provide me with a good living. I am the boss and choose my own working hours. An automobile is my only investment. My business is not for sale, but I will give to you some valuable information. Mr. J. W. Spencer, 225 W. Washington St., Lisbon, Ohio.

Male or Female Help Wanted

IF YOU live in Columbiana County, if you can talk the farmer's language, if you have a car, if your daily income is less than $1.50 per hour, write Box 316, Letter N, Salem, O., without delay for an interview.

HARRY ALBRIGHT, REALTY SPECIALIST 156 So. Lincoln Dial 3227

HERE IS YOUR COUNTRY HOME MADE TO ORDER!

Thirty-eight acres located about six miles south of Salem. This land is ideal for farming as it is self-draining and is sandy loam. Is in a high state of cultivation. Grand for chickens and fruit. Is improved with an extra nice six-room house with electricity, electric pump, furnace and modern bathroom with base tub. Laundry in the cellar.

This home has a beautiful setting as it is surrounded by beautiful shade trees. Buildings are back from the main road a short distance which makes it exclusive. Good bank barn equipped with stanchions for five cows. Large chicken house and other necessary outbuildings. Nice apple orchard and variety of all kinds of fruit.

If you are interested in a real home with sufficient land to grow your living, get in touch with me at once, as this place will soon be in the hands of a new owner. Price $6,500.

SS POLICE GUARD BERLIN QUARTERS

BY THOMAS F. HAWKINS
BERN, July 22.—A Berlin correspondent for Der Bund said today that the government quarter in Berlin was blocked off yesterday "by troops of the army and the armed SS for many hours, presumably to carry out purge measures," and that any effort to revolt could be considered to have collapsed.

His dispatch to the Swiss newspaper, the first received here directly from the Reich capital since the Germans announced the attempted assassination of Hitler Thursday, described the city as quiet.

The reserved tone of the dispatch indicated the correspondent either did not yet know all that had occurred, or was restricted to official information.

Unconfirmed reports from usually reliable sources in Bern said earlier a bloody Nazi purge claiming the lives of many of Germany's most famous generals followed the assassination attempt.

These reports said the victims included Field Marshal Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, former commander in chief of the German army, and Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, recently removed as commander of the eastern anti-invasion forces.

YANKEES

hell out of there and up into the trees," said Rear Adm. Richard W. Conolly, commanding operations.

The Yanks encountered stiffening resistance inland. But they had tanks to lead them, artillery at their backs. Offshore, battleships, cruisers and destroyers held unchallenged command of the seas. Above, American planes apparently monopolized the skies for Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' command. He made no mention of the enemy air force.

Henry characterized the Guam undertaking as the smoothest amphibious operation of the Pacific war. Less than four hours after the landings, the beaches "were crisscrossed with incoming necessities of warfare like ammunition, water, rations and medical supplies and gasoline."

U. S. Losses Light
Tokyo radio's claim of "tremendous losses inflicted by our forces" was refuted by a Nimitz communiqué last night stating "preliminary estimates indicate our casualties are moderate."

"Dead Americans were hard to find," Henry wrote.

Nimitz' communiqué last night listed a new strike by navy land-based Liberators, presumably operating from Saipan, at Chichi Jima and Haha Jima which are in the Bonin Islands a little over 600 miles south of Tokyo. A Jap destroyer was among targets bombed.

In the Southwest Pacific, bombers in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command area sank an oil-laden ship and two coastal vessels off northwest Dutch New Guinea and left another coastal vessel in flames off Timor.

REPORT NAZIS WITHDRAWING TO 'INNER FORTRESS'

GERMANY'S SUPREME WAR COUNCIL, according to Madrid sources, plans to withdraw its forces from occupied countries. On three fronts—east, west and south—Nazi manpower is spreading thin after almost five years of war. Because of mounting losses, the perimeter of Nazi conquests appears to be too long to be held with limited forces. Military observers believe that Hitler will withdraw to his inner fortress (black area on map) by throwing overboard his outermost conquests—the Balkans, Norway, Baltic states, and part of France (white area), to concentrate more on imperiled territory closer to the heart of Germany. Some of the Nazi fighting units are now operating about 25 per cent below battle strength, and pulling in troops to build these divisions to their full strength is said to be the German answer to the problem.

Summitville Manufacturer Acquires Lisbon Factory

LISBON, July 22.—Controlling interest in the Excelsior Fire Clay Co., has been acquired by F. H. Johnson, head of the Summitville Face Brick Co., of Summitville. J. P. Dixon, general manager and part owner of Excelsior, will retire, it is stated.

Johnson says that Paul Cathcart will succeed Dixon as plant manager. Cathcart has been associated with Johnson for a number of years at the Summitville plant.

A number of improvements have been proposed at the plant here, and several additional lines of refractory hollowware will be added to the present output of flue lining, sewer pipe, and drain tile.

REDS 90 MILES

German stronghold of Chelm, 10 miles southeastward.

Elsewhere in the east the German generals still taking orders from the Nazi hierarchy were buffeted anew by fierce Soviet attacks.

Enemy forces were ousted from more than 20 settlements as the Karelian offensive was renewed north and west of the road and rail junction of Suojarvi by Gen. Kyrill A. Meretskov's troops.

The long static sector south of Tarnopol was the scene of another Soviet push which reached Buczacz, northeast of the mountain passes into Hungary.

The Moscow communiqué told of the continued successes in the assault on tottering Lwow.

Front dispatches said Soviet bombers and Sturmoviks started an attack on the four to five Nazi divisions surrounded in the region of Brody, east of Lwow, after the capture of 2,000 prisoners.

Other front dispatches, describing the four-day fight for Ostrov, said not a single German was left alive after an artillery and bomber attack on the "Panther line."

The Germans set Ostrov ablaze, these dispatches said.

HITLER TELLS

chief of the German general staff, and the Count von Stauffenberg, accused by Hitler of placing the bomb—a voice on the Frankfurt radio wave length, purporting to be that of an officer in the Wehrmacht, announced this morning that "action is continuing."

Identifying the man who paid for his life for planting the bomb as Col. Count Claus von Stauffenberg, Stauffenbergs are here in the thousands.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels put out a story last night that insurgent generals attempted to grab vital lines of communication at the height of the plot—including lines direct to the front—and troops actually marched to government buildings in Berlin under "false" orders. According to Goebbels, the intervention of Hitler himself was necessary to calm the crisis.

Here in London, after nearly two days of sifting and examining a flurry of Nazi reports, there seemed to be general agreement that there was no question but that Germany was in the throes of a crisis—although every new report was treated with careful reserve.

DEATHS

GLENN HILL
LISBON, July 22.—Glenn Hill, 57, formerly of Lisbon, died yesterday at Ventura, Calif.

He was born April 10, 1887, near Lisbon, the son of W. A. Hill of Chestnut st., Lisbon. He attended Lisbon schools and was a member of the Methodist church.

He is survived by his father; his wife, Grace, of Ventura, Calif.; two sons in the army, William of Detroit, and Robert of Los Angeles; a brother, Jay, of Los Angeles; and a sister, Miss Martha Wells, Longport, Calif. Burial will be in California.

English Kids Back From United States Talk New Lingo

LONDON—It's a wise father who knows his own child—particularly if the father's English, and his child has just returned from four years in the United States, says the London Mail.

Hundreds of English children between seven and 17 who met their fathers again for the first time in years greeted them with "hi, ya, pop," and stick chewing gum kisses—after someone pointed out who Dad was. They were shy when they left England in 1940, but now they treat anybody as a buddy, and almost always have something to say for themselves.

The more than 2,000 expatriate children and mothers immediately began to learn some of the difficulties of wartime England: they couldn't find a taxi, arrange a comfortable train journey home or get American table delicacies on the £6 ($1) dinner. They saw utility clothing, contrasting with their own brightly colored smart apparel.

"It will take the youngsters a year to readjust themselves," one of the mothers said. "They will have to learn that life will be a bit harder, a little slower. And they'll have to reshuffle their ideas on lots of things."

Another Disease Licked

NEW YORK—The death rate from appendicitis was cut in half during the decade between 1930 and 1940 among industrial policy holders, insurance company statisticians reported. "The extraordinary charge is largely due to the prevention of complications of the disease, and more recently to the use of sulfa drugs in the surgical treatments," Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. statisticians said.

Prisoners Too Willing

JOLIET, Ill. — Warden Joseph Ragen of Stateville penitentiary has ruled that guards, not prisoners, must chase handballs knocked over the 32-foot prison walls by inmates during the recreation periods on the handball courts. The prisoners had offered to retrieve the balls.

Hitler's Bomber

Hans Christopher Freiherr Schenk von Stauffenberg, the man named as the one who planted the bomb that injured Adolf Hitler and a party of Nazi generals, is pictured in the above radiophoto as he appeared in London on his wedding day in 1937. A colonel in the German army, the accused man has been reported executed.

The War Today By DeWitt MacKenzie

It's upon the young fanatics that Gestapo Chief Himmler (the hangman) is depending in his bloody purge of those who oppose Hitler. Himmler's big army is composed of hand-picked Nazis. Under Hitler he is military ruler of Germany, with power of life and death over the population, military and civilian. Opposed to him are the powerful Prussian militarists and their adherents, who have their bellies full of a war which they know is lost already.

ONLY TIME WILL TELL where the greater strength lies, maybe Hitler will collapse, but we have no right to assume this.

Because it's clear that Hitlerdom is disintegrating, and that the position is so critical that "anything can happen at any time," we must recognize that this is the appointed hour to throw everything we have into dealing the death blow. As the London Times says, so long as Nazi leadership combines the efficient organization of food supplies with efficient methods of repression, there is no serious doubt of its ability to hold the situation at home. For the United Nations, during the times, the key still lies in military victory and in that alone.

That's round talk. Fortunately the Allied high command needs no coaching, as witness the hurricane of attack on all three fronts. We are pressing for the kill with fury which Germany cannot long withstand even if Hitler is able to counter the rebellion within his own ranks.

of Jersey City, who like their politics uncomplicated.

The Kelly-Flynn-Hague combination, aided by Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, won in a see-saw battle that Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action committee, had predicted would find Wallace victorious.

Break for Truman

The south, led by Oklahoma in the southwest which made the first break toward Truman, provided in a pinch the necessary votes to put the Missouri over after a first ballot on which Wallace, who remained in a downtown hotel, rolled up 429½ votes. Truman had 319½ on the initial count and the rest were divided between 14 also-rans.

The breaks came fast on the second roll call, and the futile din of galleries—some of who were University of Chicago and Northwestern university students too young to vote—could not stem the tide against Wallace.

Tossed aside after a four-year Washington career, the Iowa hat only kind words for the new ticket. "Of course," said the man who will be vice president until next January, he would support the ticket.

"The cause of liberalism has been advanced," he added. He had pitched his campaign for a place on the November ballot largely on the "liberal" and labor elements of the country.

CIO's Hillman, too, was philosophical about the outcome, telling reporters:

Please bring or send A PERFECT PAPER PATTERN of exactly one-half size and shape of your table (do not include the bevel). Also measure width of extra boards. Use ruler—not tape measure.

The hostess of today recognizes the need of a quality table pad. She knows how important it is to protect the table, the center of beauty of the dining room suite. A scarred table is not only an ugly sight in itself, but also detracts from the attractiveness of all the other pieces. Your guests will admire your furniture if your table is protected by a table pad.
